

I listen to K-Love radio network out of California in a number of places where I travel. For quite a few of their locations in the nation, this family-friendly network uses translators. I don't feel it is in the best interest of communities to give priority to Low Power FM stations over translated signals because it will decrease the options and good programming available in local communities which could not be served by a full station. Please give translators equal status and importance, not allowing your support of LPFM to hurt current groups.
